Jury Statements

The selection process was very different this year. There were two of us instead of the usual four. The Corning Museum's new curator of contemporary glass has not yet been appointed, and poor Dana Zámečníková spent the January blizzard in various U.S. airports, Corning not among them. The 100 slides selected by Lois Moran and me were sent on to Dana, and it was only from these that she was able to make her selection. As a consequence, and in consultation with our partners at Neues Glas, the jurying of work created in 1999 will take place in December 1999 (the deadline for submitting slides will be October 15), and the selections will be published in the May 2000 issue of that periodical.

Next year's New Glass Review will also be different in another respect. David Whitehouse, the Museum's director, has announced a plan to include current work by well-established glass artists in addition to the present system. Although the New Glass Review has been relatively successful in providing a venue for new talent, it is limited to those who choose to submit to the selection system. However, some of the most significant figures in the field do not send us slides of their current work on an annual basis. Under the new plan, they will be invited to have work of their own choosing reproduced in a separate section of the Review. The artists selected by each year's jurors will be contacted, and the slides they send us in response will be published. The present system of open submission by anyone wishing to send slides will continue, with the full 100 choices of the jury reproduced as before.

* * *

I started buying glass for The Corning Museum of Glass in December 1950, and I have been a juror for the New Glass Review since it began. That's a long time, encompassing thousands upon thousands of choices and an endless stream of theories about what was happening and predictions about what might happen. (Some of those predictions, such as my expectation that the Studio Glass Movement would rescue the endangered handmade glass industry, were wrong.)

No sweeping perspectives this year. Instead, I am going to list 10 objects that I'd like to buy for myself if my wife would let me – which she won't because we already have too much stuff and are at that time in life when we should be cleaning out. I have never seen any of these objects, just the slides.

1. Chuck Boux (11). I am partial to lobsters, and I always admire people who can successfully use glass in both a representational and a decorative fashion. The alarming feelers on these orange beasts cross to make a border of X's in crazy juxtaposition with the reality of that pleasant dank green bowl.

2. Dan Dailey (19). Dan gives me much that I value: function, style, imaginative design, inventive detail, wit (those are Apache dancers!), good glass, good color, great craftsmanship – all put together with elegant and original taste. This is a work of art for which any ceiling should be happily raised.

3. Anja Ispphording (34). Some things feel good even when they are held just by the eye. I want to cup my hands around this piece and sense the irregularity of all those bumps. What mystery it suggests! Why does the color stop short of the neck? What are those purple pebbles? Where leads that tapered cylinder?

4. Mie Ito (35). This box should melt. It looks so precious, so transient. Are these snow flowers? The petals are separate, unattached, making limp daisies solely by their arrangement. A formal structure, two identical slabs of frosted ice, is the pedestal for a casual and most decorative collapse.

5. Yuko Kikuzato (37). Who is supporting what? Do the bears with their big feet hold up the vase, or the vase the bears? And is the vase bellying out, or are those the bears' bellies? And is that pink and green cage an Asian diatreta? What an irresistible enigma!

6. Joel Philip Myers (49). Here's an old master I have long admired, with a fresh take on bottles, the commonest, most ancient of vessels. With simple things such as twisting, opalescence, and relative transparency – combined with a handsome arrangement – he makes stunning

Der Prozeß der Auswahl war in diesem Jahr ganz anders. Es gab zwei von uns, anstatt wie gewöhnlich vier. Die neue Kuratorin des Corning Museums für zeitgenössisches Glas war noch nicht ernannt worden und die arme Dana Zámečníková verbrachte die Januar-Schneestürme auf verschiedenen amerikanischen Flughäfen, Corning war nicht darunter. Die 100 Dias, die von Lois Moran und mir ausgewählt wurden, wurden an Dana weitergeschickt, und es waren nur diese, aus denen sie ihre Wahl treffen konnte. Als Konsequenz, und in Beratung mit unseren Partnern bei Neues Glas, wird die Jurierung der Arbeiten, die 1999 entstanden sind, im Dezember 1999 stattfinden (Einsendeschluß für die Dias ist der 15. Oktober) und die Auswahl in der Mai-Ausgabe des Jahres 2000 der Zeitschrift veröffentlicht werden.

Die New Glass Review des nächsten Jahres wird auch in noch einer Hinsicht anders sein. David Whitehouse, der Direktor des Museums, hat einen Plan angekündigt, um aktuelle Arbeiten von bereits etablierten Künstlern in das jetzige System mit einzuschließen. Auch wenn die New Glass Review ziemlich erfolgreich einen Platz für neue Talente zur Verfügung gestellt hat, war sie immer auf die angewiesen, die sich entschieden, Arbeiten zur Auswahl einzureichen. Aber manche der bedeutendsten Szenepersönlichkeiten schicken uns nicht jedes Jahr Dias ihrer jüngsten Arbeit. Der neue Plan sieht vor, daß sie eingeladen werden, selbst Arbeiten zu wählen, die dann in einem separaten Teil der Review reproduziert werden. Die Künstler, die von den Juroren jedes Jahres ausgewählt werden, werden kontaktiert und die Dias, die sie als Antwort schicken, werden publiziert. Das gegenwärtige System des offenen Wettbewerbs, bei dem jeder, der will, Dias schicken kann, wird weiter fortbestehen, und sämtliche 100 von der Jury gewählten Arbeiten werden abgebildet wie zuvor.

Ich fing im Dezember 1950 an, für das Corning Museum of Glass Glas zu kaufen und war als Juror für die New Glass Review seit ihrem Anfang tätig. Das ist eine lange Zeit, angefüllt mit tausenden und aber tausenden von Werken zur Auswahl und einem endlosen Strom an Theorien über das was passierte und Vorhersagen über das was passieren könnte. (Einige dieser Vorhersagen, wie zum Beispiel meine Erwartung, daß die Studio-Glasbewegung die gefährdete Handarbeitende Glasindustrie retten würde, waren falsch.)

Keine durchgreifenden Perspektiven in diesem Jahr. Statt dessen werde ich 10 Objekte auflisten, die ich gerne für mich kaufen würde, wenn meine Frau mich ließe – was sie nicht tun wird, weil wir bereits zuviel Kram haben und in einer Zeit im Leben sind, wo wir ausmisten sollten. Ich habe nie eines dieser Objekte gesehen, sondern nur die Dias.

1. Chuck Boux (11). Ich habe eine Vorliebe für Hummer, und ich bewundere immer Leute, die Glas sowohl auf eine repräsentative als auch auf eine dekorative Weise erfolgreich benutzen. Die beunruhigenden Fühler dieser orangefarbenen Bestien bilden eine Bordüre aus Xen in einer verrückten Nebeneinanderstellung auf dieser in Wirklichkeit angenehm dunkelgrünen Schale.

2. Dan Dailey (19). Dan gibt mir vieles was ich schätze: Funktion, Stil, phantasiereicher Entwurf, einfallsreiches Detail, Witz (es sind Apachentänzer!), gutes Glas, gute Farbe, großartiges Handwerk – alles zusammengebracht mit elegantem und originellem Geschmack. Dies ist eine künstlerische Arbeit für die man jeden Höchstpreis freudig erheben sollte.

3. Anja Ispphording (34). Einige Dinge fühlen sich gut an auch wenn sie nur vom Auge gehalten werden. Ich möchte dieses Stück mit meinen Händen umschließen und die Unregelmäßigkeiten all dieser Beulen fühlen. Welche Geheimnisse es suggeriert! Warum hört die Farbe kurz vor dem Hals auf? Was sind diese purpurfarbenen Kiesel? Wo führt dieser spitz zulaufende Zylinder hin?

4. Mie Ito (35). Diese Kiste sollte schmelzen. Sie sieht so kostbar, so vergänglich aus. Sind das Schneeballen? Die Blumenblätter sind einzeln, nicht befestigt, und wirken allein durch ihr Arrangement wie stuff. Take a close look at the seams, the sags, and the variety of surfaces.

7. Barbara Nanning (50). Most interesting objects are about the relationship of the parts, about some original change in a well-known configuration. Here it's that age-old hemisphere on the cylinder, but the particular segment of the sphere (its extraordinary thickness, texture, and color), and the flatness of the base combine to intrigue.

8. Darren Petersen (61). How these Venetian delights continue to reinvent themselves! Technique may be cheap (usually to those who don't have it), but only a master could have put together this precious canoe of colored canes and cotton twists. I like frivolous elegance.

9. Youko Sano (72). The sagging bowl (from the sagging basket?) has been around for a long time, but here it's from the hands of an artist with another kind of sensitivity. The matrix of the horizontal strands of color is cut through by ribs of grooves – under and over, irregular, coming together to notch the glassy rim. It's sedate but a little barbaric.

10. Harumi Yukutake (98). I think this is made of glass rings of various diameters, held together with twists of copper wire, the ends of which stick up and out. It looks fuzzy, but it isn't. It must be prickly, like the protective surface of a sea urchin. But it's empty: you can see through it, and there's nothing to protect. Harumi's work suggests the containment of something alive.

These are the 10 I like in a most personal way. I will try to do a Big View next year.

Jurors obviously control exhibitions by their selections, but artists themselves have a sub rosa effect simply by sending to the competition or electing not to. The juror chooses from the buffet offered, and in this Review there were many excellent submissions as well as those typical of open competitions – pieces overwrought or underdeveloped, photographs impossible to read or suspiciously glamorized, etc.

What constitutes the "new" (and to whom) is a difficult point, especially when the arena is international. New? Novel? Original? Fresh? Distinct? Recent? Unfamiliar? One cannot always be certain in the rush of images. In the end, it is a matter of perceptions rather than definitive conclusions about the art of glass at this particular time and place.

During the slide viewing, I found myself responding quickly and positively to elegant and serene works such as those of Veronika Beckh, Lena Bergström, Barbara Nanning, Etsuko Nishi, and Åsa Sandlund. I welcomed the pieces by Stephen Procter, Georg Riedel, and Koichiro Yamamoto, among others, because, in addressing function, they shift aside the scrim of "art" that has dimmed our attention to things of use.

The riot of color often seen in the medium appears reined in here, to judge from the number of works in a single color or in no color at all. Exuberance is missing, but there is still delight and play, as in Rikie Shojiguchi's fishes slithering across the floor, Robert A. Mickelsen's sassy blossom, and the vivacious piece by Janusz Pozniak. Surprisingly, large-scale works were few, making those by Kait Rhoads and Zora Palova/Stepan Pala even more distinctive. Aseem Pereira's textile-like schlappe Gänseblümchen. Eine formale Struktur, zwei identische Platten aus mattiertem Eis, ist der Sockel für einen lockeren und äußerst dekorativen Zusammenbruch.

5. Yuko Kikuzato (37). Wer trägt was? Halten die Bären mit ihren großen Füßen die Vase hoch, oder die Vase die Bären? Und baucht die Vase aus oder sind das die Bäuche der Bären? Und ist das pink- und grünfarbene Netz ein asiatisches Diatret? Was für ein unwiderstehliches Rätsel!

6. Joel Philip Myers (49). Hier ist ein alter Meister, den ich lange bewundert habe, mit einem frischen Blick auf Flaschen, den alltäglichsten und allerältesten Gefäßern. Mit einfachen Dingen wie Verdrehungen, Schillern und relativer Transparenz – kombiniert mit einem geschickten Arrangement – macht er erstaunliche Sachen. Sehen Sie sich die Nähte genau an, die Senkungen und die Vielseitigkeit der Oberflächen.

7. Barbara Nanning (50). Die interessantesten Objekte handeln vom Bezug der Teile untereinander, von irgendeiner originellen Veränderung in einer gut bekannten Konfiguration. Hier ist es die uralte Hemisphäre über dem Zylinder, aber es ist die Kombination von dem speziellen Segment des Kreises (seiner außerordentlichen Stärke, Textur und Farbe) und des fetten Unterteils, die beeindruckt.

8. Darren Petersen (61). Wie diese venezianischen Entzückungen sich immer wieder neu erfinden! Technik mag billig sein (gewöhnlich für die, die sie nicht beherrschen), aber nur ein Meister kann dieses kostbare Kanu aus farbigen Rohren und Baumwolltwist zusammengesetzt haben. Ich mag frivole Eleganz.

9. Youko Sano (72). Die durchhängende Schale (von dem durchhängenden Korb?) gibt es schon lange, aber hier stammt sie aus den Händen eines Künstlers mit einer anderen Art von Sensibilität. Die Matrix der horizontalen Farbschnüre wird durch Rippen von Riefeln durchschnitten – drunter und darüber, unregelmäßig, laufen sie zusammen, um den gläsernen Rand einzukerben. Es ist ruhig, aber ein bißchen barbarisch.

10. Harumi Yukutake (98). Ich denke, dies ist aus Glasringen mit unterschiedlichem Durchmesser gemacht, die von verschlungenem Kupferdraht zusammengehalten werden, dessen Enden ab- und hochstehen. Es sieht kraus aus, ist es aber nicht. Es muß stachelig sein wie die schützende Haut eines Seeigels. Aber es ist leer: man kann hindurchsehen und da gibt es nichts zu schützen. Harumis Arbeit spielt auf das In-Schach-Halten von etwas Lebendigem an.

Dies sind die 10, die ich auf sehr persönliche Weise mag. Ich werde versuchen, im nächsten Jahr einen Großen Überblick zu geben.

Juroren üben durch ihre Selektion ganz offensichtlich eine Kontrolle auf Ausstellungen aus, aber die Künstler selbst erzielen ebenfalls einen gewissen Effekt, indem sie sich an der Ausschreibung beteiligen oder beschließen es nicht zu tun. Der Juror wählt aus dem was sich darbietet aus, und bei dieser Review gab es viele exzellente Einreichungen aber auch solche, die für offene Wettbewerbe typisch sind – Stücke, die überladen sind oder unterentwickelt, Abbildungen, die man unmöglich entziffern kann oder die verdächtig überhöhen, etc.

Die Frage was das „Neue“ ausmacht (und für wen) ist schwierig, besonders wenn der Schauplatz international ist. Neu? Ungewöhnlich? Originell? Frisch? Anders? Modern? Ungewohnt? Man kann sich in der Flut der Bilder nicht immer sicher sein. Am Ende ist es eher eine Sache der Wahrnehmung als definitive Schlußfolgerungen über Glaskunst zu genau dieser Zeit und an diesem Ort.

Es ist mir aufgefallen, daß ich während der Diadurchsicht schnell und positiv auf elegante und ruhige Arbeiten reagierte, wie die von Veronika Beckh, Lena Bergström, Barbara Nanning, Etsuko Nishi, und Åsa Sandlund. Mir gefielen die Stücke von Stephen Procter, Georg Riedel, und Koichiro Yamamoto, unter anderem deshalb so gut, weil sie mit Blick auf die Funktion sich von der Illusion der „Kunst“ weg bewegen, die unsere Aufmerksamkeit für Gebrauchsgegenstände getrübt hat.

Die Orgie der Farben, die man in diesem Medium oft sieht, erscheint hier gezügelt, wenn man die Zahl der Arbeiten in Betracht zieht mit nur einer Farbe oder ganz ohne. Überschwang fehlt, dafür gibt es aber hanging was particularly intriguing, inviting closer examination. Another I would like to see firsthand is the environment by Schotterwerkstatt. Judith Schaechter's well-rendered scene commands attention; so, too, does the echoing portrait by Dinah Hulet.

There is much to praise in this New Glass Review – and in the record created since the inception of the competition in 1976. How enjoyable and informative it is to page through the published editions of the Review, letting them take you forward and back with the field of glass. Whatever the debate concerning the "new" in glass, there is lasting merit in the Corning Museum's search to find it.

Heiterkeit und Spiel wie bei Rikie Shojiguchi's Fischen, die über den Boden glitschen, Robert A. Mickelsen's frechen Blüten, und dem lebhaften Stück von Janusz Pozniak. Überraschenderweise gab es nur wenig großformatige Arbeiten, wodurch die von Kait Rhoads und Zora Palova/ Stepan Pala noch deutlicher hervorstachen. Aseem Pereira's textilähnlicher Wandbehang war besonders faszinierend und lud zu einer genauerer Betrachtung ein. Eine weitere Arbeit, die ich gern direkt sehen würde, ist die Installation von Schotterwerkstatt. Judith Schaechter's subtil interpretierte Szene erheischt Aufmerksamkeit; das gilt ebenfalls für das Anklängen findende Porträt von Dinah Hulet.

Es gibt an dieser New Glass Review – und dem Archiv, das seit der Gründung des Wettbewerbs 1976 entstanden ist – viel zu loben. Wie erfreulich und informativ ist es, die bisher veröffentlichten Ausgaben der Review zu durchblättern und sich vorwärts und rückwärts durch das Gebiet der Glaskunst führen zu lassen. Ungeachtet die Debatte um das „Neue“ im Glas, bleibt es das Verdienst des Corning Museums, sich darum zu bemühen es zu finden.

Awave of happiness flooded me when I got the invitation from The Corning Museum of Glass. To serve as a member of this year's New Glass Review jury – and to join the distinguished company of those who have been jurors in the past – that means something! But I also have a number of personal reasons for excitement.

When, years ago, Thomas S. Buechner, then the director of the Corning Museum, was preparing the "Czechoslovakian Diary: 1980" exhibition, he actually started off my "career" as with a magic wand. Today, what is probably my largest and most complicated work, one that required more than a year to complete, is in the headquarters of Corning Incorporated. Finally, the Corning Museum collection offers contemporary artists a sobering reminder that almost all of the techniques they employ were already in use in antiquity – and much of what was produced then seems to be better and more contemporary than what is being created today. Take, for example, the cover in the form of a fish (see, e.g., Donald B. Harden and others, Glass of the Caesars, Milan: Olivetti, 1987, p. 49). Unbelievable! And that piece was made in the first century!

I therefore looked forward to visiting Corning – and was horrified at the same time. Here is just a sample of the things that were going through my mind:

How will I choose anything? Can you actually tell what a piece looks like, based solely on a slide? I know well enough how tricky photos can be – how you can photograph a small, unexciting piece and make it look monumental, or how you can ruin a decent piece with a really bad picture. When it comes to artists I don't know, how am I going to understand what their work really means? An object may not always be self-explanatory; indeed, it can be about something that is indecipherable if one cannot think in wider terms. And what about the artists I do know and recognize by their works? How can I judge their work objectively when I am a friend of theirs?

On top of all that, I know how popular New Glass Review is and how much effort Thomas S. Buechner, Susanne K. Frantz, and others have invested to make it important for glass and for artists, especially the young ones.

And, of course, I was mortified when I found out I would have to write a jury statement! I had only the slightest idea about how to write one, and I have enough problems explaining things to myself at times. So how could I hope to explain to others why I chose certain works and not others? On the other hand, I know that you can talk about such things and still not say anything significant.

But, as it happened, things did not turn out remotely as I had anticipated.

From Prague, I traveled to Boston and then, by some mysterious maneuver, to Philadelphia. Thanks to a snowstorm, I now know both of those airports perfectly, having been stuck there for two days. I never managed to reach Corning! I am probably the first member and non-member of the New Glass Review jury. And so, unfortunately (or maybe Eine Welle von Glück durchströmte mich, als ich die Einladung vom Corning-Museum of Glass bekam. Als Mitglied der diesjährigen Jury für die New Glass Review zu amtieren – und sich dem ausgewählten Kreis derer zuzugesellen, die in der Vergangenheit Juror waren – das bedeutet etwas. Außerdem habe ich auch ein paar persönliche Gründe zur Freude.

Als, vor Jahren, Thomas S. Buechner, damals Direktor des Corning Museums, die Ausstellung „Czechoslovakian Diary: 1980“ vorbereitete, setzte er meine „Karriere“ wie mit einem Zauberstab in Gang. Heute befindet sich meine wahrscheinlich größte und komplizierteste Arbeit, eine, die mehr als ein Jahr erforderte um sie zu beenden, im Hauptfirmsitz von Corning. Schließlich bietet die Sammlung des Corning Museums zeitgenössischen Künstlern eine nüchterne Gedächtnissstütze, die daran erinnert, daß fast alle Techniken mit denen sie arbeiten, bereits in der Antike verwendet wurden – und vieles von dem was damals hergestellt wurde, scheint besser und zeitgenössischer zu sein, als das was heute geschaffen wird. Nehmen Sie, zum Beispiel, den Deckel in Form eines Fisches (bei, z. B. Donald B. Harden and others, Glass of the Caesars, Mailand: Olivetti, 1987, S. 49). Unglaublich! Und dieses Stück wurde im ersten Jahrhundert gemacht!

Ich freute mich deshalb auf den Besuch in Corning – und war gleichzeitig entsetzt. Hier ein Auszug der Dinge, die mir durch den Kopf gingen:

Wie werde ich irgendetwas wählen? Kannst du eigentlich, aufgrund eines einziges Dias sagen, wie ein Stück aussieht? Ich weiß gut genug wie trickreich Fotos sein können – wie man ein kleines, langweiliges Stück fotografiert und es monumental aussehen läßt, oder wie man ein anständiges Stück durch ein wirklich schlechtes Bild ruinieren kann. Werde ich, wenn es um die Künstler geht, die ich nicht kenne, verstehen, was ihre Arbeit wirklich bedeutet? Ein Gegenstand kann sich nicht immer selbst erklären; selbstverständlich kann es sich um etwas handeln, das nicht zu entziffern ist, wenn man nicht in größeren Kategorien denken kann. Und was ist mit den Künstlern, die mir bekannt sind und die ich durch ihre Arbeiten wiedererkenne. Wie kann ich ihre Arbeit objektiv beurteilen, während ich mit ihnen befreundet bin?

An erster Stelle weiß ich aber wie populär die New Glass Review ist und wieviel Anstrengungen Thomas S. Buechner, Susanne K. Frantz, und andere investiert haben, um sie so bedeutend für das Glas und für die Künstler, besonders die jungen, zu machen.

Und, natürlich, war ich entsetzt, als ich herausfand, daß ich ein Jurystatement schreiben sollte! Ich hatte nur eine vage Idee, wie man eines schreibt, und ich habe genug Probleme, mir selbst manchmal Dinge zu erklären. Wie also konnte ich hoffen, anderen zu erklären, warum ich gewisse Arbeiten auswählte und andere nicht? Andererseits weiß ich, daß man über solche Dinge reden und dennoch nichts von Bedeutung sagen kann.

Aber, wie es sich so traf, stellten sich die Dinge nicht entfernt so dar, wie ich es erwartet hatte.

fortunately), I didn't get a chance to see all of the submitted works, but only the 100 chosen by the other two jurors.

Even that was enough of a dilemma! You see, I give preference to broad-minded and grand projects. I try to see everything in as wide a context as possible. To me, everything is connected to everything else. Literature, film, theater, multimedia presentations, architecture (which I studied, and in which glass is today and will be in the future one of the most important materials) – all of these are related to contemporary art. Of course, I see all sorts of things, even things that have nothing in common with glass. But if I should give some examples of those in the fine arts who use glass to express their ideas, I would have to include Marcel Duchamp, Christopher Wilmarth, Mario Merz, Robert Rauschenberg (Plexiglas), Kiki Smith, and Gaetano Pesce (whose beautiful chandeliers appeared in last year's New Glass Review). Wonderful glass works that are the result of collaboration with an architect (and not just freestanding objects) have also been produced by James Carpenter, Libenský and Brychtová, Václav Cigler, and Marian Karel. At the Prague Academy of Applied Arts, where Marian teaches "glass in architecture," students thus try to perceive glass in all its breadth, from small designs to projects in architecture or landscape.

To me, it is important that craftsmen, glassmakers, artists, and architects should learn to work with glass as a material in its full expressive range, and not limit themselves to just a few of its possibilities. Because glass is not only one of the oldest materials (as shown in the Corning Museum's collection) but also a material of the future, it has not yet been completely defined. Its almost unreal technical properties are always being pushed forward. Today, there are practically no limits, rules, or laws that exist in work with glass. It can be combined with any other material and technology.

Among this year's New Glass Review selections, only a few pieces captured my interest right from the beginning. Paul Marioni's Tattoo'd Man was probably the most effective work in this regard, but then again, he always holds my interest. I admire the range of his work – from beautiful little cups to works in architecture – and that work is always beautifully done, with each object demonstrating a different idea in a completely artistic manner.

I know very well how complicated and tricky a material glass can be. Glassmaking techniques require a lot of manual and craft skills that are not always connected with as much artistic invention. Glass thus very often remains in the craft sphere. There is always the danger that we will let ourselves become so bound by the technique and technology of glass that our ideas get lost along the way.

Von Prag reiste ich nach Boston und dann, durch irgendein geheimnisvolles Manöver, nach Philadelphia. Dank eines Schneesturms kenne ich jetzt diese beiden Flughäfen perfekt, da ich dort zwei Tage hängen geblieben bin. Es ist mir überhaupt nicht gelungen, Corning zu erreichen. Ich bin wahrscheinlich das erste Mitglied und Nichtmitglied der New Glass Review Jury. Und so erhielt ich unglücklicherweise (oder vielleicht glücklicherweise), nicht die Gelegenheit alle eingereichten Arbeiten zu sehen, sondern nur die 100, die von den anderen beiden Juroren ausgewählt worden waren.

Sogar das war ein hinreichendes Dilemma! Sehen Sie, ich gebe toleranten und großartigen Projekten den Vorzug. Ich versuche alles in einem Kontext zu sehen, der so groß wie möglich ist. Für mich ist alles mit allem verbunden. Literatur, Film, Theater, Multimediaspräsentationen, Architektur (die ich studiert habe und in der Glas heute eines der wichtigsten Materialien ist und in Zukunft sein wird) – sie alle sind mit der zeitgenössischen Kunst verbunden. Natürlich sehe ich alle Arten von Dingen, sogar Dinge, die mit Glas nichts gemeinsam haben. Aber wenn ich einige Beispiele in der bildenden Kunst erwähnen darf, die Glas benutzen, um ihre Ideen auszudrücken, müßte ich Marcel Duchamp, Christopher Wilmarth, Mario Merz, Robert Rauschenberg (Plexiglas), Kiki Smith und Gaetano Pesce nennen (dessen schöne Kronleuchter im letzten Jahr in der New Glass Review erschienen). Wunderbare Glasarbeiten, die in Zusammenarbeit mit einem Architekten entstanden sind (und nicht nur Freiplastiken) stammen von James Carpenter, Libenský und Brychtová, Václav Cigler, und Marian Karel. An der Prager Akademie für Angewandte Kunst, an der Marian „Glas in der Architektur“ unterrichtet, versuchen Studenten deshalb, Glas in seiner ganzen Bandbreite wahrzunehmen, von kleinen Entwürfen bis zu Projekten in der Architektur oder der Landschaft.

Für mich es ist wichtig, daß Handwerker, Glasmacher, Künstler und Architekten lernen sollten, mit Glas als einem Material in seiner ganzen Ausdrucksfülle zu arbeiten, und sich nicht einfach nur auf ein paar seiner Möglichkeiten zu beschränken. Weil Glas nicht nur eines der ältesten Materialien (wie die Sammlung des Corning Museums zeigt) sondern auch ein Material der Zukunft ist, ist es bis heute noch nicht völlig definiert. Seine fast unwirklichen technischen Eigenschaften werden ständig vorangetrieben. Heute gibt es praktisch keine Grenzen, Regeln oder Gesetze für die Arbeit mit Glas. Es kann mit jedem anderen Material und jeder anderen Technologie kombiniert werden.

Unter der diesjährigen Auswahl für die New Glass Review zogen nur wenige Stücke von Anfang an mein Interesse auf sich. Pauls Marionis

I thus chose a few works according to my best judgment, with the belief that they were made with passion and as the result of a creative struggle. Works produced on the basis of experience are very often decorative and not so exciting. Even an egg, under its geometrical shape, hides a life. In the same way, a vessel cannot have only geometry; it must have its own warm and living mystery.

There is only one art. There is no such thing as one big art and another art that is somehow smaller, decorative, and applied. It is inconceivable that applied art should straggle behind fine art in the depths of conception. They are both the very serious expression of a moment in time. Otherwise, they would be just a game, unworthy of a lifelong effort.

The longer I ponder the objects I chose, the closer they are to me. The most interesting works, I believe, were submitted by Jane Bruce, Ervin Černý, Yuji Obata, Laura de Santillana, Claudio Tiozzo, Willem Volkersz, and Jack Wax. (I couldn't help noticing that some of the trends in these works seem to come straight out of Prof. Josef Kaplický's text and recordings, made between 1928 and 1950. They are relevant to this day.)

We should not forget that, in art, there is no small or big work. There is only good or bad work.

Tattoo'd Mari war wahrscheinlich in dieser Hinsicht das wirksamste, aber andererseits gehört ihm mein Interesse schon immer. Ich bewundere das Spektrum seiner Arbeit – von wunderschönen kleinen Tassen bis zu Arbeiten in der Architektur – und diese Arbeit ist immer wunderbar ausgeführt, wobei jedes Objekt eine andere Idee auf eine absolut künstlerische Weise darstellt.

Ich weiß sehr gut wie kompliziert und knifflig ein Material wie Glas sein kann. Die Techniken des Glasmachens erfordern viel manuelle und handwerkliche Geschicklichkeit, die aber nicht immer mit genausoviel künstlerischer Erfindungsgabe verbunden sind. Glas bleibt damit sehr oft in der Handwerksphäre. Es besteht immer die Gefahr, daß wir uns von der Technik und der Technologie des Glases so fesseln lassen, daß unsere Ideen unterwegs verloren gehen.

Ich wählte dementsprechend einige wenige Arbeiten nach bestem Wissen, mit dem Glauben, daß sie mit Leidenschaft gemacht wurden und das Resultat einer kreativen Auseinandersetzung sind. Arbeiten, die auf der Basis von Erfahrung entstehen, sind sehr oft dekorativ und nicht so aufregend. Sogar ein Ei verbirgt unter seiner geometrischen Form ein Leben. Im selben Sinn kann ein Gefäß nicht nur aus Geometrie bestehen; es muß sein eigenes, warmes und lebendiges Mysterium haben.

Es gibt nur eine Kunst. Es gibt nicht irgendetwas wie eine große Kunst und eine andere Kunst die irgendwie kleiner, dekorativ und angewandt ist. Es ist unbegreiflich, daß angewandte Kunst in den Tiefen der Konzeption hinter den bildenden Künsten herzockeln soll. Sie sind beide der gleiche ernstzunehmende Ausdruck eines Augenblicks. Andernfalls wären sie nur ein Spiel, einer lebenslangen Anstrengung unwürdig.

Je länger ich über die Objekte nachdenke, die ich ausgewählt habe, desto näher sind sie mir. Die interessantesten Arbeiten, glaube ich, wurden von Jane Bruce, Ervin Černý, Yuji Obata, Laura de Santillana, Claudio Tiozzo, Willem Volkersz und Jack Wax eingereicht. (Mir ist aufgefallen, daß einige der Trends in diesen Werken direkt aus Prof. Josef Kaplickýs Text und Aufzeichnungen, die er zwischen 1928 und 1950 gemacht hat, zu stammen scheinen. Sie sind noch heute relevant.)

Wir sollten nicht vergessen, daß es in der Kunst keine kleine oder große Arbeit gibt. Es gibt nur gute oder schlechte Arbeit.

Note

In 1998, more than 6,000 copies of the New Glass Review 20 prospectus were mailed. Each entrant could submit a maximum of three slides. A total of 924 individuals and companies representing 44 countries submitted 2,504 slides. The 100 objects illustrated in this Review were selected by three jurors, whose initials follow the descriptions of the objects they chose.

All slides submitted to New Glass Review are retained in the Rakow Library of The Corning Museum of Glass, where they may be viewed by the public. Copies of slides published in any of the past Reviews may be purchased by special order from the Museum's Sales Department. Copies of New Glass Review 3 (1982), 13 (1992), 17 (1996), 18 (1997), and 19 (1998) are still available from the Sales Department, which can also supply all back issues of the Review in black-and-white microfiche.

The Corning Museum of Glass would like to thank all of the artists and designers who submitted their slides to New Glass Review for consideration. Special thanks are due to those who made this publication possible: Young Oak Bond, Louise Bush, Brandy Harold, Charlene Holland, Richard Price, Amber Pruden, Joan Romano, Jacolyn Saunders, and Violet Wilson.

Schlußbemerkung

1998 sind mehr als 6000 Einladungen für die New Glass Review 20 versandt worden. Jeder Teilnehmer konnte bis zu drei Dias einreichen. Insgesamt schickten 924 Einzelpersonen und Firmen aus 44 Ländern 2504 Dias. Die 100 Arbeiten, die in dieser Review abgebildet sind, wurden von drei Juroren ausgewählt, deren Initialen den ausgesuchten Objekten beigelegt sind.

Alle für die New Glass Review eingereichten Dias werden in der Rakow-Bibliothek des Corning Museums of Glass gesammelt, wo sie der Öffentlichkeit zur Ansicht zugänglich sind. Kopien von Dias, die in den vergangenen Reviews erschienen sind, können durch Sonderbestellung bei der Verkaufsabteilung des Museums erworben werden. Alle alten Ausgaben der Review können auch auf Schwarzweiß-Mikrofiche geliefert werden.

Das Corning Museum of Glass möchte sich bei allen Künstlern und Designern bedanken, die ihre Dias zum Wettbewerb eingereicht haben. Besonderer Dank gilt jenen, die diese Ausgabe ermöglicht haben. Some Reflections on the Competition

Einige Betrachtungen über den Wettbewerb

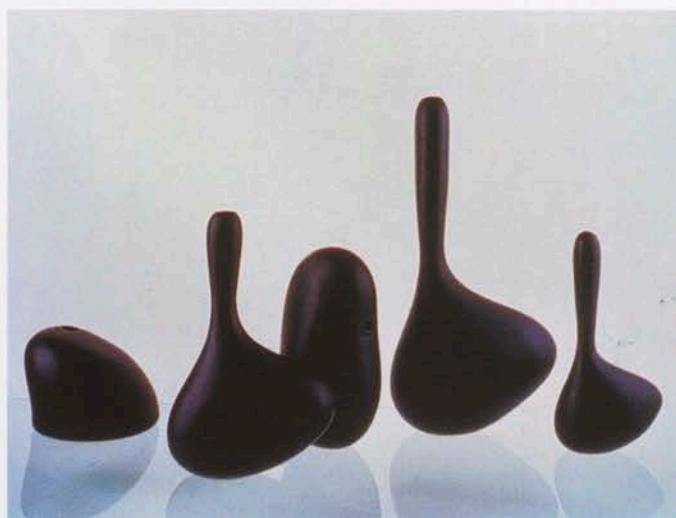

As a student of the fine and decorative arts and the newest member of the curatorial team at The Corning Museum of Glass, I found the experience of observing the New Glass Review competition to be both rewarding and enlightening. From this comprehensive overview of international glass, a variety of compelling themes emerged. The issue of "newness" prevailed. Change, from the subtle to the very dramatic, was omnipresent. In this article, I will highlight some of the trends and the esthetic, stylistic, and technical achievements that characterize the new glass of 1998.

The fascination with natural forms is as alive today as it was in 1937 with the appearance of Alvar Aalto's Savoy vase and the advent of Biomorphism as seen in the works of Jean Arp and Henry Moore. During that year, Moore wrote an essay titled "The Sculptor Speaks," in which he said, "There are universal shapes to which everybody is subconsciously conditioned and to which they can respond if their conscious control does not shut them off." In much the same way that "pebbles show nature's way of working with stone," the sculptural stones of Laura de Santillana and those of Chuck Lopez show an artist's way of working with glass. One sighs with delight at the sublime beauty achieved by Akane Matsuura in Breath (46) and the organic nature that embodies such sculptural vessels as Ebony Grouping by Benjamin Edols and Kathy Elliott, Soft Forms by Takeshi Sano (71), and Emergence by Mark Thiele. In Moody Garden, Cristiano Bianchin sheathes his bottles in hemp and sets them in sand, creating an intriguing assemblage of organic vessels that are at once familiar

As Studentin der bildenden und angewandten Kunst und neuestes Mitglied im Kuratorenteam des Corning Museums of Glass empfand ich die Erfahrung, den New Glass Review Wettbewerb zu beobachten, sowohl lohnend als auch aufschlußreich. Aus dieser umfassenden Übersicht über internationales Glas, tauchte eine Vielzahl verlockender Themen auf. Das Thema der "Neuheit" herrschte vor. Veränderung, vom subtilen zum dramatischen, war allgegenwärtig. In diesem Artikel werde ich einige von den Trends und den ästhetischen, stilistischen und technischen Leistungen hervorheben, die das neue Glas 1998 charakterisieren.

Die Faszination durch natürliche Formen ist heute genauso lebendig wie 1937, als Alvar Aaltos Vase Savoy auftauchte und den Beginn des Biomorphismus, wie man ihn von den Arbeiten Jean Arps und Henry Moores kennt, markierte. Während dieses Jahres schrieb Moore einen Essay mit dem Titel „The Sculptor Speaks (Der Bildhauer spricht)“, in dem er sagt: „Es gibt universelle Formen, von denen jeder unbewußt abhängig ist und auf die er reagieren kann, wenn die bewußte Kontrolle keine Sperrre dafür bildet.“ Auf die gleiche Weise wie „Kieselsteine den Weg der Natur zeigen, mit Stein zu arbeiten“, zeigen die bildhauerisch bearbeiteten Steine von Laura de Santillana und von Chuck Lopez die Art des Künstlers bei der Bearbeitung von Glas. Man seufzt vor Freude bei der sublimen Schönheit, die Akane Matsuura in Breath (46) erreicht und der organischen Natur, die skulpturale Gefäße wie Ebony Grouping von Benjamin Edols und Kathy Elliott, Soft Forms von Takeshi Sano (71) und Emergence von Mark Thiele verkörpern. and foreign. Perhaps this affinity for organic forms is due in part to the revived interest in modernism in the decorative arts.

Organicism and growth characterize the lampworked compositions of the Japanese artist Masami Koda. Although Muku, Orbit, and Kot Kot are linked in their use of pods, each work entails a distinctly different approach: adaptations of a theme that exemplifies both the consistency and the versatility of this artist.

Another result of this fascination with organismism derives naturally from the use of blown glass. In 1952, Kaj Franck captured both the breath of the artist and the transience of a fleeting moment in the simplicity of Saippukulpa (Soap bubbles), which he designed for the Nuutajarvi Glassworks in Finland. Among the artists who have produced elegant variations on this theme since then are Stephen Procter and Franz Höller. One of the most recent interpretations appears in Steffen Orlowski's ethereal outdoor installation To Come Up into Being (55). In this work, a multitude of bubbles appears to float upward from a grassy field cloaked in an early morning mist. A more whimsical version of the glass bubble appears in Kana Tanaka's Daydreaming Bubble (86). One even detects a faint bubble enclosing the woman's head in Beata Stankiewicz-Szczerbik's pâte de verre portrait I Don't Know (82). Such interpretations of the organic form exploit the plastic qualities of glass and appeal to our senses naturally, in much the same way that anthropomorphic vessels do.

It was particularly intriguing to note the number of entries that focus on anthropomorphic themes. In fact, bodily organs and parts of all types – torsos, skulls, and hearts, in particular – were recurrent themes in this year's competition. Some of the most poignant renderings of the heart appear in the works of Annette Clarke. The profound umhüllt Cristiano Bianchin seine Flaschen mit Hanf und legt sie auf Sand und kreiert so eine Assemblage aus organischen Gefäßen, die gleichzeitig vertraut und fremd sind. Vielleicht verdankt sich seine Affinität für organische Formen zu einem Teil dem wiedererwachten Interesse der modernen Einstellung gegenüber der angewandten Kunst.

Organismus und Wachstum charakterisieren die lampengearbeiteten Kompositionen des japanischen Künstlers Masami Koda. Obwohl Muku, Orbit, und Kot Kot durch ihre Verwendung von Schoten miteinander verbunden sind, bringt jede Arbeit eine eindeutig unterschiedliche Annäherung mit sich: Adaptionen eines Themas, das beides veranschaulicht, die Beständigkeit und die Vielseitigkeit des Künstlers.

Ein weiteres Ergebnis dieser Faszination durch Organik ergibt sich natürlichlicherweise durch den Einsatz von geblasenem Glas. Im Jahr 1952 fing Kaj Franck sowohl den Atem des Künstlers als auch die Vergänglichkeit des flüchtigen Augenblicks in der Einfachheit von Saippukulpa (Seifenblasen) ein, die er für die Nuutajarvi Glashütten in Finnland entwarf. Zu den Künstlern, die seither elegante Variationen zu diesem Thema entworfen haben, gehören Stephen Procter und Franz Höller. Eine der jüngsten Interpretationen taucht in Steffen Orlowski's ätherischen Außeninstallation To Come Up into Being (55) auf. Bei dieser Arbeit scheint eine Vielzahl von Blasen über einer Wiese zu schweben, die in Morgen Nebel getaucht ist. Eine eher wunderliche Variante einer gläsernen Blase taucht in Kana Tanaka's Daydreaming Bubble (86) auf. Man entdeckt sogar eine schwache Blase, die in Beata Stankiewicz-Szczerbik's pâte de verre Portrait I Don't Know (82) den Kopf einer Frau umhüllt. Solche Interpretationen der organischen Form schlachten die plastischen Qualitäten peacefulness embodied in Silence is broken with Untitled. From the first of these works, a gathering of abstract ivory heart forms, one was plucked and punctured with a myriad of pins in the second work, causing us to gasp with pain at the sight of it. Stephen Jon Clements illuminates the sensuous qualities of the human figure and the seductive qualities of glass and wood, mounting an abstract, elliptical turquoise mask on a wooden body in Emerald Demure. Yet another variation on this theme—the use of wire as a skin enclosing the glass vessel—is seen in Carole Frève's Second Skin, Caitlin Johnson's Spirit Encased, Bonyun Yoan's Untitled, and Marta Gibiete's Two Sisters (25).

Wire was also paired with glass in a variety of large-scale weavings by two Australian artists, Keith Dougall and Aseem Pereira. In these works, glass is imbued with a textile-like quality in the form of two distinctly different “woven” curtains. Composed of hand-pulled and slumped glass cane, Dougall's Glass Weaving #9 (21) appears like a glorified rag rug, its undulating pastel panels unfurled to the floor, where they are rolled neatly. Pereira's Untitled (60) is an extremely complex composivon Glas aus und appellieren an unsere natürlichen Sinne auf ungefähr die gleiche Weise wie anthropomorphe Gefäße.

Es war besonders spannend, die Zahl der Beiträge zu registrieren, die anthropomorphe Themen in den Mittelpunkt stellen. In der Tat, Organe und Teile aller Art des Körpers, insbesondere – Torsi, Schädel und Herzen – waren immer wieder auftauchende Themen beim diesjährigen Wettbewerb. Einige der ergreifendsten Interpretationen des Herzens tauchen in den Arbeiten von Annette Clarke auf. Die tiefe Friedfertigkeit die durch Silence verkörpert wird, wird in Untitled aufgebrochen. Aus einer der ersten dieser Arbeiten, einer Ansammlung von abstrakten Herzformen aus Elfenbein, wurde eine herausgerissen und in einer zweiten Arbeit von tausenden Nadeln durchstochen, die ein tiefes Luftholen verursachen wenn man sie zum ersten Mal sieht.

Stephen Jon Clements illuminiert die sinnlichen Qualitäten der menschlichen Figur und die verführerischen Eigenschaften von Glas und Holz, indem er bei Emerald Demure eine elliptisch türkise Maske auf einen hölzernen Körper montiert. Es gibt sogar noch andere Variationen über das Thema – die Verwendung von Draht als Haut, die das gläserne Gefäß umhüllt – wie bei Carole Frève's Second Skin, Caitlin Johnson's Spirit Encased, Bonyun Yoan's Untitled, und Marta Gibiete's Two Sisters (25).

Draht war auch in einer Vielzahl von großformatigen Webereien der beiden australischen Künstler Keith Dougall und Aseem Pereira mit tion of discarded glass bottles that are cut, drilled, and woven. In its richness of color and texture, as well as its architectural appeal, it is reminiscent of one of Jack Lenor Larsen's most important textiles, Remoulade.

Interesting interpretations of this textile theme were translated into vessels as well. Certainly one of the most stunning juxtapositions of glass and wire is Jane Gavan's Black Urn (23). Other examples are Layla Walter's cast glass and lead crystal Woven Rimmed Bowl #1 (93), which was inspired by the Raranga Whakairo o Aotearoa weaving pattern of New Zealand, and Youko Sano's Warm Time, Warm Space (72).

Naturally, a large number of entries focused on the vessel. Although there were many original interpretations of the vessel form, space limitations permit the discussion of but a handful. Noteworthy is the tactile appeal of Veronika Beckh's kinetic composition Contemplation (5), in which the serenity of 21 free-blown segments is seemingly disrupted by human touch. In Group of Forms II from the "Line Drawings" series (6), Clare Belfrage manages to render her imposing black forms radioactive, using light to outline them in various shades of blue, green, and red. Edwin Biesheuvel's Core (9) beautifully illustrates the gestalt principle of closure in its ability to alter our perceptions and render the "incomplete" vessel whole. Koichiro Yamamoto's 6 Mugs (96) challenges and delights the eye; by placing his six cylindrical forms side by side, the semi-circular shapes within them become handles that appear to overlap. This purity of form also resides in Shinji Yonehara's series of vessels titled Ancient Sounds (97). Here the delicacy of the translucent ovoid vessels is balanced by a mysterious mottled skin, imbuing the forms with a primordial spirit.

Changes in Scandinavian design are reflected in the works submitted by the designers at Orrefors Kosta Boda. One of the most dramatic esthetic changes came from Ulrica Hydman-Vallien, whose blown Snake Flowers (31) at once recalls the 18th–19th-century Persian rose water sprinklers and implies growing forms – a distinct departure from her painted glass vessels. The colorful opaque vessels of Ann Wählström gave way to translucent bodies wrapped in red-orange ribbons, as seen in Cyklon (92). Lena Bergström also continues to refine her designs; she submitted a series of elegant minimalistic vases.

Subtle changes also appear in the purity of the drinking glasses designed by Georg Riedel. Developed for wine tasting, the Vinum Tasting Glass (68) measures a precise amount of wine in its stem, accounts for the appropriate aeration space in its volume, and facilitates a 360-degree swirl, which allows for an even interior coating. One cannot help but marvel at the technical mastery that goes into these machine-blown glasses.

Glas gepaart. In diesen Arbeiten ist Glas in Form von zwei unterschiedliche „gewobenen“ Vorhängen von einer textilähnlichen Qualität durchdrungen. Bestehend aus handgezogenen und abgesenkten Glasstäben erscheint Dougall's Glass Weaving #9 (21) wie ein aufgedonnerter Lappenteppich, dessen wogende Pastellpaneele unaufgerollt auf den Boden fließen, wo sie sauber zusammengerollt sind. Pereira's Untitled (60) ist eine extrem komplexe Komposition aus Altglasflaschen, die geschliffen, gebohrt und verwoben sind. In seiner Pracht der Farben und der Textur erinnert es ebenso wie in seinem architektonischen Reiz an eine der bedeutendsten Textilien von Jack Lenor Larsen, Remoulade.

Interessante Interpretationen dieses Textilthemas wurden auch auf das Gefäß übertragen. Sicherlich eine der erstaunlichsten Gegenüberstellungen von Glas und Draht ist Jane Gavan's Black Urn (23). Andere Beispiele sind Layla Walters Woven Rimmed Bowl #1 (93) aus gegossenem Glas und Bleikristall, das durch das Webmuster Raranga Whakairo o Aotearoa aus Neuseeland, und durch Youko Sano's Warm Time, Warm Space (72) inspiriert wurde.

Eine Vielzahl der Einreichungen konzentriert sich natürlich auf das Gefäß. Obwohl es viele originelle Interpretationen der Gefäßform gab, erlaubt die Beschränkung des Platzes hier nur die Diskussion einer handvoll. Bemerkenswert ist die taktile Wirkung von Veronika Beckh's kinetischer Komposition Contemplation (5), bei der die Klarheit von 21 frei geblasenen Segmenten scheinbar durch menschliche Berührung gestört wird.

Bei Group of Forms II aus der „Line Drawings“ Serie (6) gelingt es Clare Belfrage, ihre imponierenden schwarzen Formen radioaktiv herauszustellen, indem sie sie durch verschiedene Schattierungen von blau, grün und rot konturiert. Edwin Biesheuvel's Core (9) illustriert sehr schön das Gestaltprinzip der Schließung durch seine Fähigkeit, unsere Wahrnehmung zu verändern und das „unvollendete“ Gefäß als ganzes herauszustellen. Koichiro Yamamoto's 6 Mugs (96) fordert das Auge heraus und entzückt es; indem er seine sechs zylindrischen Formen nebeneinander stellt, werden die halbrunden Formen im Inneren zu Henkeln, die sich zu überlappen scheinen. Die Reinheit der Form wohnt auch Shinji Yoneharas Gefäßserie mit dem Titel Ancient Sounds (97) inne. Hier wird die Zartheit der transluziden Eiformen durch eine geheimnisvolle gesprenkelte Haut ausbalanciert, die die Formen mit einem Urgeist durchdringt.

Veränderungen im skandinavischen Design spiegeln sich in den Arbeiten wider, die von Designern von Orrefors Kosta Boda eingereicht wurden. Eine der dramatischsten ästhetischen Veränderungen kommt von Ulrica Hydman-Vallien, deren geblasene Snake Flowers (31) sofort an die persischen Rosenwassersprudel des 18.–19. Jahrhun-

Nowhere is the appeal of minimalism more alluring than in Dimensions (70) by Åsa Sandlund, a tall, ellipsoidal opaque glass form punctuated by a window of transparent glass in the center.

Such subtlety of form also appears in the remarkably delicate vessels created by pâte de verre artists. Among them are the exquisite works of Etsuko Nishi (51), which convey a sense of delicacy and mystery. Seemingly weightless, Lace Vessel appears to float across invisible waters, with its subtle, undulating rhythm echoing the wind and the waves. Maintaining this delicacy, yet exploding with color, is Jane Morrissey's Riot of Colour, the purity of its form enlivened by a cacophony of glorious color. Another most unusual and intriguing work is Hikari Ando's coiled, claylike Ishikoro (3). Outstanding among the many works in pâte de verre in which artists exploited the quiescent qualities of glass is Mie Ito's Untitled (35). Nakao Yuko created a dynamic variation in her blown, fused, slumped, and fire-lustered Sphere.

The small grouping of works submitted by framewokers was equally impressive, delicate, and refined. One truly extraordinary example was Bennett Battaile's Third Wave, which in the complexity of its folded forms is reminiscent of Naum Gabo's linear constructions. Another was derts erinnern und wachsende Formen miteinbeziehen – ein eindeutiger Abschied von ihren bemalten Gefäßen. Die farbigen opaken Gefäße von Ann Wählström haben den Weg bereitet zu transluziden Körpern, die in rot-orangene Bänder gewickelt sind wie bei Cyklon (92). Auch Lena Bergström fährt damit fort, ihre Entwürfe zu verfeinern; sie reichte eine Serie von eleganten minimalistischen Gefäßen ein.

Subtile Veränderungen lassen sich auch in der Reinheit der Trinkgläser ausmachen, die von Georg Riedel design wurden. Für Weinproben entworfen, bemisst das Vinum Tasting Glass (68) eine genaue Menge Wein in seinem Stil, der für den Belüftungsbedarf des Inhaltes berechnet ist, und erlaubt einen 360-Grad-Schwenk, der ein gleichmäßiges inneres Benetzen erlaubt. Man kann nicht anders als diese technische Meisterschaft zu bewundern, die in diese maschinengeblasenen Gläser eingeflossen ist.

Nirgendwo ist der Appeal des Minimalismus anziehender als bei Dimensions (70) von Åsa Sandlund, einer hohen, elliptischen opaken Glasform, die in der Mitte durch ein Fenster aus transparentem Glas betont ist.

Solche subtilen Formen tauchen auch in den bemerkenswert feinen Gefäßen auf, die von pâte de verre Künstlern stammen. Unter ihnen sind die exquisiten Arbeiten von Etsuko Nishi (51), die ein Gefühl von Zartheit und Geheimnis vermitteln. Lace Vessel scheint schwerelos über einer unsichtbaren Wasserfläche mit einem subtilen wogenden Rhythmus zu treiben, der wie ein Echo auf den Wind und die Wellen ist.

Diese Zartheit führt, obwohl sie vor Farbe explodiert, Jane Morrissey's Riot of Colour fort; die Reinheit ihrer Form wird durch die Kakophonie der prächtigen Farben belebt. Eine weitere ungewöhnliche und beeindruckende Arbeit ist Hikari Andos ineinander gewundenes, tonähnliches Ishikoro (3). Aus den vielen pâte de verre Arbeiten, bei denen Künstler die stillen Qualitäten von Glas erforschen, ragt Mie Ito's Untitled (35) heraus. Nakao Yuko kreiert eine dynamischen Variation in ihrem gebläsenem, verschmolzenem, abgesenktem und feuergelüsterten Sphere.

Die kleine Gruppe von Arbeiten, die von Lampenarbeitern eingereicht wurde, war ebenfalls beeindruckend, zart und raffiniert. Ein wirklich beeindruckendes Beispiel war Bennett Battaile's Third Wave, das durch die Komplexität seiner gefalteten Form an Naum Gabo's lineare Konstruktionen erinnert. Ein anderes war Kazuyo Hashimoto's Woven Glass I (26), ein Haus aus farblosen lampengearbeiteten Fäden, die einen Würfel aus polychromem lampengearbeitetem Draht um-Kazuyo Hashimoto's Woven Glass I (26), a house of colorless lamp-worked filaments enclosing a cube of polychrome lampworked threads. Robert A. Mickelsen's Organism Series – Sirius (47), a complex stylized sculptural flower, is the result of multiple techniques. Emilio Santini incorporates his unique feral figurines in the architectonically impressive Uros (74), a tour de force of lampworking.

Throughout history, animals have been a constant source of inspiration for artists. This year was no exception. Some of the most original interpretations appeared in Elmarie van der Merwe's Horn Series, I (90), a sculptural goblet; Rikie Shojiguchi's Sake (81), an installation depicting a school of fish; and Frank Zika's Mask, Fish, and Fowl, which, in its minimalism, modulation of line, and illusionistic properties, captivates the viewer.

Susan O'Brien lends an uncommon sensitivity to the art of reverse painting on glass. In At Rest, she creates a powerful portrait of resting people. The soft, subtle strokes of the paintbrush create a dynamic chiaroscuro, capturing the play of light and shadows on the serene faces with all the elegance of a charcoal drawing.

Such a sensuousness of light, shadow, and line is masterfully translated into three dimensions in Leah Wingfield's Romance del diablo. Her stylized cast crystal and painted figurines, which pay homage to Art Deco, beautifully exploit the properties of glass. The male figurine's silhouette is revealed through the female's translucent finery, accentuating the graceful torsion of their bodies. This same powerful black-and-white esthetic inspired Stephen Procter's fused, blown, and cut sculptural vessels Walking In and Walking Out and Opposite and Equal 2 (65). Technically, materially, and stylistically, these new works indicate a significant artistic departure from his earlier light forms.

An entirely different approach to fusing appears in the work of Miriam Di Fiore. Her impressionistic fused glass compositions are both painterly and powerful. Homeless and Andar per legna (To Gather Firewood) (20) are masterpieces of trompe l'oeil, luring the eye beyond their wooden window frames into their lush landscapes.

Such impressionistic images were rare in the New Glass Review competition, but realism appeared frequently. The works of Mariko Takada and Michael Krumrine are esthetically antithetical but strong and original examples of realism. In Takada's Still Life – Orange (85), the unraveled fruit appears, awaiting our discovery. Krumrine's Paralyzation Chair (Version 3) is equally convincing. Here a rough oak chair schließen. Robert A. Mickelsens Organism Series – Sirius (47), eine komplexe stilisierte plastische Blume, ist das Ergebnis verschiedener Techniken. Emilio Santini gliedert seine außergewöhnlichen wilden Statuetten in das architektonisch beeindruckende Uros (74) ein, eine Tour de Force der Lampenarbeit.

Im Lauf der Geschichte sind Tiere eine konstante Quelle der Inspiration für Künstler gewesen. Dieses Jahr bildete keine Ausnahme. Einige der originellsten Interpretationen begegnen uns bei Elmarie van der Merwe's Horn Series, I (90), einem skulpturalen Kelch; Rikie Shojiguchi's Sake (81), einer Installation, die einen Schwarm von Fischen darstellt; und Frank Zikas Mask, Fish, and Fowl, das in seinem Minimalismus, der Modulation der Linie und seinem illusionistischen Reichtum den Betrachter in Bann zieht.

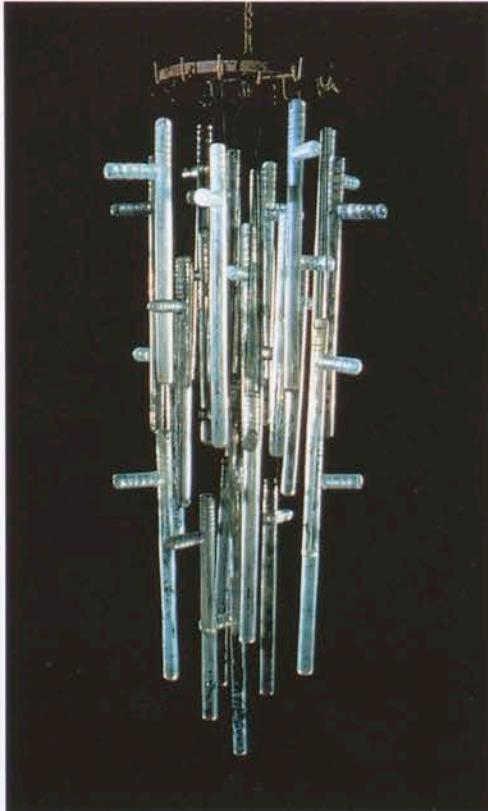

Susan O'Brien verleiht der Kunst der Hinterglasmalerei eine ungewöhnliche Sensitivität. In At Rest kreiert sie ein ausdrucksvolles Porträt sich ausruhender Menschen. Die weichen, feinen Pinselstriche schaffen ein dynamisches Halbdunkel, das das Spiel von Licht und Schatten auf den gelassenen Gesichtern mit all der Eleganz einer Kohlezeichnung einfängt.

Solch eine Feinfühligkeit für Licht, Schatten und Linie wird meisterhaft dreidimensional in Leah Wingfield's Romance del diablo übersetzt. Ihre stilisierten gegossenen kristallinen und bemalten Figurinen, die dem Art Deco Anerkennung zollen, erforschen sehr schön die Eigenarten von Glas. Die Silhouette der männlichen Figurine wird durch den durchscheinenden Putz der weiblichen sichtbar, wodurch die anmutige Drehung ihrer Körper akzentuiert wird. Die gleiche kraftvolle schwarz-weiß-Ästhetik hat Stephen Proters verschmolzen, geblasen und geschliffene skulpturale Gefäße Walking In and Walking Out und Opposite und Equal 2 (65) inspiriert. Technisch, von der Materie her gesehen, und stilistisch kennzeichnen diese neuen Arbeiten eine bedeutende künstlerische Abwendung von seinen früheren leichten Formen.

Ein vollkommen anderer Zugang zum Verschmelzen taucht in der Arbeit von Miriam Di Fiore auf. Ihre impressionistisch verschmolzenen frame is upholstered with an opaque manganese cast glass in a stark and imposing rendering of an electric chair. No less haunting is Patrick Martin's Untitled, a mobile of night sticks composed of solid sculpted glass, paint, leather, and metal. Each of these works illustrates the importance color can play in creating rhythm.

Two distinctly different yet masterful approaches to rhythm and color are seen in the works of Marvin Lipofsky and Peter Aldridge. Lipofsky's Series IGS VI 1998 #2 (40) is a veritable symphony. The harmony of his muted jewel tones fills his signature undulating forms with lyricism. Whereas Lipofsky's forms are organic and opaque, Aldridge's are geometric and transparent. His A Moment in Time (2) sculpture at the Victoria and Albert Museum is another of his dichroic explorations of color and light that manifest themselves within the strict geometry of optical glass sculptures. We appreciate Lipofsky's and Aldridge's works year after year, marveling at the seeming effortlessness that masterfully disguises the complexity of their techniques.

Another interesting trend to follow is the metamorphosis in the work of a few mixed-media artists. Daniel Clayman's New Glass Review entries were powerful works in bronze and glass. Throughout his career, Clayman has explored the relationship between glass and various metals. Over the past few years, however, he has turned from found objects, which he favored in his early work, to a new naturalism. As exemplified in Cipe (16), he uses casting to encase his opaque organic glass forms in a bronze shell.

Two young artists who continue to submit compelling varieties of work are Kait Rhoads and Harumi Yukutake. While Rhoads has an astonishing repertoire of assemblages incorporating glass, Yukutake creates a multiplicity of sculptures using glass as her primary material. In Pas de deux (66), Rhoads employs glass, steel, and waxed linen to create an ethereal and inviting shelter. The delicacy of this esthetic stands in contrast to her other submissions, Symbiotic and Selkie's Skin, each of which recalls her previous works. Yukutake used glass tubes in her ongoing exploration of organic forms, creating an unsettling spiny protuberance in Polyp (98) and building a fractured wall of glass in Structure.

Another explorer of organic forms is Jack Wax. Although Tane (94) and Pleat represent a significant departure from his anthropomorphic Glaskompositionen sind sowohl malerisch als auch ausdrucksstark. Homeless und Andar per legna (To Gather Firewood) (20) sind Meisterwerke des trompe l'oeil, die das Auge hinter ihre hölzernen Fensterrahmen in ihre üppigen Landschaften locken.

Solche impressionistischen Bilder sind beim New Glass Review Wettbewerb selten, während Realismus oft auftaucht. Die Arbeiten von Mariko Takada und Michael Krumrine sind ästhetisch gegensätzlich dabei aber starke und originelle Beispiele für Realismus. In Takada's Still Life – Orange (85) taucht die geschälte Frucht auf, die unserer Entdeckung harrt. Krumrines Paralytic Chair (Version 3) ist ebenso überzeugend. Hier ist ein unbehandeltes Stuhlgestell aus Eiche mit einem opaken manganfarbenem gegossenen Glas bezogen, das sehr stark und beeindruckend an einen elektrischen Stuhl erinnert. Nicht weniger eindringlich ist Patrick Martin's Untitled, ein Mobile aus Schlagstöcken, die aus massivem skulptural bearbeitetem Glas, Farbe, Leder und Metall bestehen. Jede dieser Arbeiten verdeutlicht welche Bedeutung Farbe bei der Kreation von Rhythmus spielen kann.

Zwei vollkommen unterschiedliche wenn auch meisterhafte Ansätze in Rhythmus und Farbe kann man in den Arbeiten von Marvin Lipofsky und Peter Aldridge beobachten. Lipofsky's Series IGS VI 1998 #2 (40) ist eine wahrhafte Symphonie. Die Harmonie seiner verstummt Edelsteinklänge füllt die wogenden Formen seiner Handschrift mit Lyrik. Während die Formen von Lipofsky organisch und opak sind, sind Aldridge's geometrisch und transparent. Seine Skulptur A Moment in Time (2) im Victoria und Albert Museum ist eine weitere seiner dichroiden Erforschungen von Farbe und Licht, die sich selbst in der strikten Geometrie der optischen Glasskulpturen manifestieren. Wir schätzen Lipofskys und Aldriges Arbeiten Jahr für Jahr, verwundert über die scheinbare Mühelosigkeit, die meisterhaft die Komplexität ihrer Techniken verbirgt.

Ein anderer interessanter Trend, dem man nachgehen sollte, ist die Metamorphose in der Arbeit einiger weniger Mixed-Media-Künstler. Daniel Claymans Einreichungen für die New Glass Review waren kraftvolle Arbeiten in Bronze und Glas. Während seiner ganzen Karriere hat Clayman die Beziehung zwischen Glas und verschiedenen Metallen erforscht. Im Lauf der letzten Jahre hat er sich jedoch von Fundstücken, die er in seinen frühen Arbeiten favorisierte, einem neuen Naturalismus forms of 1997, he continues to create variations in color and surface texture, thereby producing dramatically different effects.

Finally, I must mention Toan Klein's Art and Craft, which boldly addresses the lingering issue of art and craft, injecting it with welcome humor.

New glass may be colored or colorless, whimsical or sublime; it may exploit the optical properties of glass, shroud those properties in an opaque skin, or transform the material into the likeness of another. Whatever form it takes, however, it is rarely about technical newness. Instead, it is primarily concerned with new artistic themes and new methods of implementing techniques. The submissions to this year's New Glass Review competition are as inspired as they are impressive. Thank you all for sharing your artistry and your vision with the world.

zugewendet. Wie in Cipe (16) deutlich wird, benutzt er das Gießen, um seine opaken organischen Glasformen mit einer bronzenen Haut zu ummanteln.

Zwei junge Künstler, die weiterhin eine beeindruckende Vielfalt von Arbeiten einreichen, sind Kait Rhoads und Harumi Yukutake. Während Rhoads über ein erstaunliches Repertoire von Assemblagen, die Glas mit einbauen, kreiert Yukutake eine Vielzahl von Skulpturen, in denen sie Glas als Hauptmaterial einsetzt. In Pas de deux (66), verarbeitet Rhoads Glas, Stahl und gewachstes Leinen, um einen ätherischen und verlockenden Schutz zu kreieren. Die Feinheit dieser Ästhetik steht im Kontrast zu ihren anderen Einreichungen wie Symbiotic und Selkie's Skin, die beide an ihre früheren Arbeiten anknüpfen. Yukutake benutzt Glasrohre in ihrer voranschreitenden Erforschung von organischen Formen, kreiert beunruhigende, stachlige Auswüchse in Polyp (98) und baut eine fragmentierte Glaswand in Structure.

Ein weiterer Erforscher der organischen Form ist Jack Wax. Obwohl Tane (94) und Pleat eine signifikante Abkehr von seinen anthropomorphen Formen von 1977 darstellen, fährt er fort, Variationen über Farbe und Oberflächentextur zu kreieren, wobei er dramatisch unterschiedliche Effekte produziert.

Schließlich muß ich Toan Kleins Art and Craft erwähnen, das sich frech an das fortwährende Thema Kunst und Kunsthandwerk richtet und ihm einen willkommenen Humor injiziert.

Neues Glas kann farbig sein oder farblos, absonderlich oder sublim; es mag die optischen Eigenschaften von Glas erforschen, diese Eigenschaften unter einer opaken Haut verschleiern oder das Material in die Ähnlichkeit mit einem anderen transformieren. Egal welche Form es annimmt hat es selten mit technischen Neuheiten zu tun. Stattdessen geht es in erster Linie um neue künstlerische Themen und neue Methoden Techniken zu ergänzen. Die Einreichungen für den diesjährigen New Glass Review Wettbewerb sind so anregend wie sie beeindruckend sind. Dank an alle, die ihre Kunsfertigkeit und ihre Vision mit der Welt teilen.
